CCSD reminds undocumented immigrants of no-reporting policy
District reassures students and families that their privacy will be protected

LAS VEGAS – In light of recent national news involving immigration enforcement, the Clark County School District (CCSD) is reminding families that CCSD schools are safe places for undocumented students and their families, and that all children have a constitutional right to a public education.

“Even though it is summer, we have students at schools participating in various programs and parents who are re-registering their students for next year. It is critical to me and the members of the Board of School Trustees that students and parents feel safe on our school campuses,” said CCSD Superintendent Dr. Jesus F. Jara. “Our top priority is the safety and well-being of all our students and to focus on providing our students a rich and rigorous education. By reinforcing our commitment to all CCSD families, we are staying true as a community to work as one team with one goal to make CCSD number one for kids.”

A CCSD resolution remains in effect from 2017, when the Board of School Trustees reinforced the district’s commitment to students regardless of immigration status. CCSD does not report undocumented immigrants to authorities, nor does CCSD ever ask students or parents about their immigration status.

The resolution aimed to reassure students and families that their privacy would continue to be protected and that all students would continue to receive a quality education.

Additionally, families should know their rights. More details may be found in English at wehaverights.us and in Spanish at wehaverights.us/spanish.
